Water Flushing

Pipe Flushing is a pre-commissioning activity. Piping and pipeline systems are flushed before commissioning the line or put into action. Pipeline or Pipe Flushing can be defined as the activity where a sufficient quantity of fluid is pumped through the piping or pipeline section with sufficient velocity to forcibly remove construction debris, dust, rust, and mill scale.

Pipeline & Process Services (Operation Phases)

This phase is considered as the most important phase in any industry so, to maintain anything during this phase will be critical and cost so much to stop production for any plant, our role here is to provide new professional services to be applied during this phase which won't affect, stop or down it in any case.

Pipeline & Process Services (Operation Phases)

Online PSV Calibration

is the process of testing pressure and safety relief valves on site whilst the plant remains online typically during process in operation. This enables the valves to be Adjusted and Broken tested as they contain and to operate at their control or pressure.

- Enables plant operators to test and adjust valves online without expensive shut-downs.
- Ensures that pressure and safety relief systems are safely operating, and that plant personnel and equipment are protected.
- Reduces emissions caused by broken or set valves.
- Reduces energy used by eliminating the need to over-pressurize the plant.

Online PSV Equipment

- Mechanical pulling rig.
- Electronic system.
- Software and Data Base.
